

ACT NOW

CENSUS IS APPROACHING

Dear <Students First Name>

Time is running out

Our records show that you haven't logged into your course pages. We are concerned as you have missed four weeks of study and at risk not being able to complete the course successfully. You need to act now.

If you do not intend to study this study period, you should immediately log into myEnrolment and drop your courses. Instructions on how to drop your courses can be found on ask Campus Central.

The <Census date> is the census date which is the final day to make any changes to your enrolments. Enrolments after census will incur a HELP debt and will be recorded on your academic record.

First year undergraduate students who have not engaged with any of their courses and are in their first study period will be automatically removed from the course if they have not logged into LearnOnline by <2 days before census>. All other students must manage their own enrolments to avoid incurring academic and financial penalty.

If you wish to continue studying and believe you have been engaging in your course, please contact Campus Central immediately.
